ABRAHAM KRIEL BAMBANANI B-BBEE OFFERING

SED Element

Traditionally companies have donated funds to Abraham Kriel Bambanani and other suitable NGO's to be used towards gaining access to the economy. As all our activities empower children and youth to develop to the extent that they can participate in the economy, any contribution in the form of a donation can count towards this element. We believe that the investment in children's basic education is particularly relevant here. However, any contribution directly to the organisation will qualify

Abraham Kriel Bambanani can prove that it has 90% black beneficiaries. (Requirement 75% black beneficiaries)

This means: On the SED element of your scorecard you can donate any amount as needed to earn the full 5 points. (Beneficiary Verification Certificate available)

Skills Development Element:

Contributing to our Skills Development programmes is another low hanging fruit, which can earn your company valuable points. The critical thing here is that the funding must be linked to an individual black beneficiary.

On the Skills Development element we have:

- Students doing accredited courses.
Please see the attached prospectus for our Skills Centre for more information about the courses
- Tertiary students doing formal training
If you wish to prepare for potential changes regarding Skills Development spend, find out from us about qualifying Black students from our community and our residential care programmes who are either already studying or who are hoping to start their study careers next year.
- In service training for unemployed youth in Child Care Work.
 - Because of a lack of formal training in the field of child care work, Abraham Kriel Bambanani has developed its own accredited course in child care work. All new staff have to undergo this training, but we also take EPWP volunteers on board in co-operation with the Department of Social Development. During their one year in service they can undergo this training as they will have exposure to the practical elements of the course. The course costs R15 000 and takes ten months to complete. It has a NQF level 4 accreditation.
 - The above course can be regarded as category D or E depending on the viewpoint of your verification agency.

ED Element

On the ED element we have taken a step back to review our Enterprise Development strategy. We are currently working more intensively with fewer emerging enterprises in order to ensure that they can become self-sustaining.

We are also investigating our own Enterprise which will have the sole objective of building the sustainability of AKB, through the empowerment of Black beneficiaries. Watch this space for further developments.

Kind regards
